

Methods Used to Assure Necessary Transportation of Recipients

- I. Transportation is provided to eligible individuals for necessary medical and remedial care.
 - A. Ambulance Transportation
 1. Ambulance transportation shall be provided when the medical necessity is such that the use of any other method of transportation is inadvisable.
 - B. Transportation by Means Other Than Ambulance
 1. When not available from other sources, transportation is provided as an administrative service. Eligible individuals may request non-ambulance transportation service from:
 - a) public or private agencies that the state has contracted with to provide or arrange transportation services, or
 - b) the single state agency in areas not serviced through contractual arrangements with public or private contractors/brokers.
